0402302 Probability and Engineering Statistics

The objective of the course is to expose the student to the following topics: Probability and statistics in engineering, descriptive statistics, introduce to probability, important discrete and continues distribution, the normal distribution, hypothesis testing, simple and multiple regression and application of statistics in quality control.